Congratulations on your ordination! Are you planning to perform a wedding in the near future? In most areas of the country, you will be asked to present official proof of your legal ordination before being allowed to officiate a marriage ceremony. With your credentials in hand, you will be able to:

- Legally officiate weddings across the United States
- Impress your friends, family, and peers with your new official status
- Expand your career as a minister / professional officiant

No matter where you are located in the U.S., the Universal Life Church has made available every legal resource you'll need to fully exercise your Constitutional rights as an ordained minister. These items, in addition to books, clothing, and other assorted ministerial goods, are all available for purchase in the Church Supplies section of our website.

Before performing any weddings, please click the buttons above to learn more about the ULC, receive weddings training, view a customized guide to performing marriage in your state, or generate a personalized script for the upcoming ceremony.

Beyond solemnizing legal marriages, your ordination allows you to exercise a host of rights and freedoms made available to all ministers. You can start your own church, create good in your community in your new capacity, as well as perform baptisms, funerals, house-blessings, baby-namings, and a number of other ceremonies.
